

THE CREATIVE CAREERS PROGRAMME WITH SPEAKERS FOR SCHOOLS

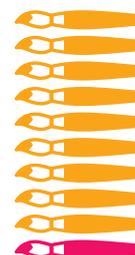

Join us and inspire the next generation

Our charity ensures that the biggest influencers and leaders across the sector engage the next generation of talent in state schools, inspiring students to consider a career in the creative sector.

The Creative Careers Programme is a two-year industry-led campaign enabling hundreds of thousands of young people to discover opportunities across the creative industries. Speakers for Schools has been brought on board to engage the creative sector's highest-profile figures and organisations, through speaking opportunities with students in English state secondary schools and creating short, life-changing work experience placements at their organisations.

9 out of 10 creative jobs are occupied by people from more advantaged backgrounds – the sector's diversity isn't keeping pace with the times.

CREATE CONNECTIONS, SPARK POTENTIAL

Industry influencers are an essential part of inspiring the next generation of the creative sector. Help state students aspire to reach the top.

Speakers for Schools is the only UK charity ensuring that high-profile figures and organisations are able to connect and work with state secondary schools and students. Our flagship speaking and work experience programmes reach 1,700 state schools and over 100,000 students each year.

We help level the playing field for young people, sparking their ambitions and their belief in what is possible for the future. And we are experts in supporting industry leaders and top organisations to create these inspiring engagements.

WE'RE LOOKING FOR LEADERS

Our network is made up exclusively of established, influential figures from top organisations. But we need to involve even more leaders to change the status quo for young people.

From Baroness (Martha) Lane Fox to renowned choreographer Kenneth Olumuyiwa Tharp CBE and TV exec Jeremy Darroch, with organisations including Penguin Random House and the National Portrait Gallery, by getting involved you'll be in good company with leaders who are serious about giving back to the next generation.
